

Jose Rodolfo Hernandez-Carrion is Associate Professor at the Department of Applied Economics at the University of Valencia UVEG (Spain), holding a Ph.D. in Economics. He has been teaching Economics 101 since 1989 in different centres and languages (Catalan, Italian, Spanish and English). He served on the governing board of Spanish Association of Regional Science (AEER) and Spanish Society of Systems Science (SESSE). After his Ph.D. he conducted research on “Economics Education for Change” and “New Pedagogies in Teaching Economics.” He was Visiting Scholar at University of Bologna (1992) and participated in the Icarus Project at the supercomputing center CINECA (Italy), later at University of Limerick (Ireland), University of California at Berkeley and UCLA (Los Angeles), University of North Carolina at Greensboro (UNCG), and UIUC in the United States (USA). Visiting Professor at Northeast Normal University in

Changchun and Peking University (China); and invited to several European universities as ERASMUS+ Professor. He can be reached at rodolfo.hernandez@uv.es